

Andrew Serfass - Eagle Scout Project 2002

My project involved replacing, restoring and improving informational trail signs at Kenilworth Aquatic Gardens. The sign posts detail how the Nacotchtank Indians used the local resources to survive. I installed a self-guided tour on the Kenilworth Aquatic Gardens River Trail to allow visitors to learn about the different plants and land features Native Americans would have lived off of. The trail was in good condition and had a previously installed tour through it with numbers on posts but it was in disrepair. I erected 12 durable signposts. The text was laminated paper between two bolted plexiglass panes which were screwed into a 4x4 painted pressure-treated post. The posts were secured with Sakrete in the ground.
